Issue 15

We hope you enjoyed Niche
Night #1!

Silver and Green Niche Coins are in circulation, so let's get ready for two more on their way!

The following information will be shared in more detail during our upcoming 2024 UnSecurities UnProspectus.

If you are reading this issue of the Sunday Niche Newsletter, it means you are ahead of the game because no other schools or after school programs know the details about the Blue or Gold Niche Coin.

To understand the Blue and the Gold Niche Coin, we must revisit the difference between investments and securities.

Only one of these two terms hold any weight along American courts and the international monetary system.

An "investment" is not actually a legal word.

When people say "investment," they refer to things that grow more valuable over time.

For example, education is considered an investment because it leads to better and better jobs - it grows more valuable over time.

But, you cannot sell your high school diploma or your college degree to someone else.

Thus, the government created the word "security" for investments that can be traded.

A security is a government-approved investment.

To be a security, something must be "secured." As you may recall, a stock secures your right to partial ownership of a company.

To turn your investment into a security, it must be inspected by the Securities Exchange Commission, an agency of the United States federal government.

The Niche Clinic does not want to do all that, so we made an UnSecurity.

The UnSecurity will "secure" different assets, and two possibilities are the Blue Niche Coin and the Gold Niche Coin.

The Blue Niche Coin has a face value of $50. That means you can redeem it for $50 on the spot!

The Gold Niche Coin has a face value of $100! As you might imagine, this means you can redeem a Gold Niche Coin for $100 on the spot.

More information about the trading and exchanging of other Niche Coins and UnSecurities will be discussed in the coming weeks!
